Regardless of the method, you can choose for wireless internet in your car, the service will come at a cost. A car connected to the wi-fi is more convenient than you can imagine. Cedida Photo: Good Brigade / Getty Images If you are traveling through an airplane, automobile or sea ship, having wi-fi moving is advantageous in many ways. Chrysler was the first manufacturer to build cars with a Wi-Fi-enabled device. Photo Courtesy: Robert Reciker / Getty Images Yes! Some cars come with a built-in Wi-Fi device that does not need a separate device to connect to the Internet. Alternatively, there must be a button on your car dashboard that connects the feature. The significant advantage of choosing an OBD-II device over any other option for Wi-Fi connectivity in the car is that the device can connect directly to your smartphone through an application. Once again, check with the manufacturer of your car to determine what the service provider partnered with the supply of Wi-Fi services in your car. The car entertainment system will act similar to a router and will bring a connection to the Internet in the cabin. 2. Consider having a charger by your side. The Wi-Fi car comes along with your car system, which means you can connect to the Internet without having to turn your smartphone into a mobile hotspot, buy a separate hotspot dongle or use an OBD-II device. Cars like Chevrolet Cruze, Chrysler 200, Audi A3, and many more have a built-in Wi-Fi device with a stronger sign than the traditional hotspot feature on our smartphones. The process is different according to any device you are using. You can use these devices anywhere with network coverage, including areas out of your car.
